STATE HEALTH PLAN ONE OF THE FIRST IN THE NATION TO BE RECOGNIZED FOR INNOVATIVE PAYMENT MODEL

HARTFORD, CT -- An innovative payment model between the state health plan and several Connecticut medical providers was approved by The Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) this week as an Other Payer Advanced Alternative Payment Model (APM) Comptroller Kevin Lembo and Signify Health, Inc. (NYSE: SGFY) announced.

The State of Connecticut Health Plan is one of the first commercial plans in the nation to earn this designation for its episode-of-care payment model. As a result, certain doctors, hospitals and provider groups that have contracted with the state will be eligible for greater reimbursement from Medicare. The designation will bolster recent efforts to shift the dynamics of how the state purchases health care.

“This approval represents a significant recognition that our efforts to drive down the cost of care in the state health plan are benefiting everyone involved,” said Comptroller Lembo. “By working directly with doctors and hospitals to establish comprehensive prices for many common procedures, we’ve incentivized the highest-quality care while holding costs down. I anticipate this new CMS designation will encourage even more participation and look forward to seeing more mutual benefits across the board. I hope these types of innovations will be replicated by other large health plans and help Connecticut cement its status as the health care capital of the world.”

The CMS designation will be effective January 1, 2022. The more than 220,000 employees and retirees under the state health plan have access to the value-based agreements under a program called the “Episodes of Care program.” The Episode of Care program, which is administered by Signify Health, includes a “Network of Distinction” for healthcare providers.

“The designation of the State of Connecticut’s Episodes of Care program as an Other Payer Advanced APM represents a historic step in the advancement of value-based care nationwide,” said Kyle Armbruster, CEO of Signify Health. “CMS’ ongoing commitment to affordability, quality, and outcomes has been of significant benefit to patients, providers, and taxpayers alike. We are excited that best practice from federal and state value-based care programs will be extended to commercial health plans, and are proud to be a part of this catalyst for continued adoption of value-based care by innovative provider organizations.”

The State of Connecticut's employee and retiree health plans, as well as the Connecticut Partnership Plan, launched the Episodes of Care program in October 2020. The initiative encourages doctors, hospitals and provider groups to deliver high-quality, coordinated care at competitive prices for the entire course of treatment — from evaluation through recovery — for a condition or illness. This method of care delivery and payment established a new industry standard by aligning clinical and financial incentives across the continuum of care for providers, patients, and health plans.

With the Other Payer Advanced APM designation, starting in 2022, certain providers in the Episodes of Care program will earn credit towards Medicare's Quality Payment Program (QPP), rewarding providers that accept financial and clinical responsibility for reducing costs and improving quality of care. Since its inception last year, 1,400 physicians have committed to the state's quality and cost standards through their participation. Additional provider groups are still eligible to join.

The Episodes of Care program significantly reduces variations in costs by setting fixed, episode-of-care, prices for over 40 common health episodes that may be delivered by multiple providers across multiple sites. Healthcare services that are eligible to be included in these program episodes could span as much as 60 percent of the average health plan's spend, and include episodes such as knee replacement, colonoscopy, cataract surgery, care related to pregnancy, and more. Also featured is a comprehensive spine episode aimed at helping members avoid unnecessary surgery.

Signify Health is supporting the State of Connecticut's Episodes of Care program by identifying, contracting with and supporting participating providers with services, technology, and analytics, as well as securing fixed, episodes-of-care pricing with high-value network providers.
